Key to success to avoid irregularities is a clear 4-eyes principle, segregation of duties and proper internal control. Employees have to make sure that the full organization and business partners are aware that:

- Employees always need two (legally and internally) authorized signatures (from Managers) to approve and sign orders, payments, credit notes, contracts, any other commitments, etc
- Employees require such commitments in writing to become valid,
- Purchasing people are not allowed to receive and control incoming invoices,
- Sales people are not allowed to prepare and issue invoices and credit notes.

All reporting at all levels throughout the Company must be truthful and factual. All employees are responsible for ensuring the accuracy and reliability of the Company's accounts. It is the policy of the Company that all books and records conform to generally accepted accounting principles and to all applicable laws and regulations. All books and records of the Company must be kept so that they fully and fairly reflect all receipts and expenditures by the Company. We maintain internal accounting controls and procedures that further define management reporting responsibilities.

Record Retention

Each employee should preserve and maintain all business records in accordance with applicable Company records policies and legal requirements. Records should be maintained and destroyed accordingly. Records should not be improperly altered. In no case may documents involved in a pending or threatened litigation, governmental inquiry or law suit or other information request be discarded or destroyed, regardless of the periods specified in any record retention policy nor legal regulation.

Electronic Information

Company data transmitted and/or stored electronically are assets requiring unique protection. Each employee throughout the Company is responsible for compliance with Company policies related to electronic information security. It is a violation of this Policy to access sexually-oriented and other inappropriate material using Company assets. Inappropriate use of Company electronic communication resources, regardless of the medium, is prohibited. Isolated accidental access to inappropriate material does not constitute misconduct.

Privacy and Personal Information

Employees of the Company are expected to comply with all applicable privacy and data collection laws and regulations. Employees should operate in a way that ensures the safeguarding of individually-identifiable personal information, including medical and financial information, collected and used to conduct business operations and to carry out personnel administration.

Any suspected violations of trade or contract manufacturers should be reported in accordance with the procedures set out above.

Employees are urged to consider the spirit of this policy statement and to act accordingly. It is vital that we maintain our commitment both to observing and abiding by the laws governing our business and to the protection of our good name and reputation. Any questions, judgments, conflicts, observations, etc. regarding this policy statement should be referred to the Group Legal Department.

CODE OF BUSINESS PRINCIPLES

If anyone becomes aware of a situation in which he or she believes VGP's ethical and legal guidelines have been violated or if he or she feels to being pressured or being asked to compromise his or her values, it is his or her responsibility to communicate this concern to the Company. It is important for people to know that they will not be disciplined, lose their job or be retaliated against in any way for asking questions or voicing concerns about our ethical or legal obligations, as long as he or she is acting in good faith.
